Get your Tutorial or Survey published in IEEE Communications Surveys & Tutorials

IEEE Communications Surveys & Tutorials is a ComSoc publication. It provides researchers and other communications professionals with the ideal venue for publishing on-line tutorials and surveys which are exposed to an unlimited global audience. It is available online through the IEEE Xplore Electronic Library and the IEEE ComSoc Digital Library (in which the access is free of charge by setting up a guest account). We are now looking for contributions for all future issues. Topics of interest include all areas of communications and networking, including but not limited to:

- Communication Networking, and Networking Technology, Applications, and Services
- Telecommunications Switching and Routing
- Wireless and Mobile Networks, including Ad Hoc and Sensor Networks
- Cognitive and Intelligent Radio Networking
- Personal Communications
- Radio and Satellite Communications
- Smart Grid Communications and Networking
- Lightwave Technologies and Optical Networking
- Security, Trust, and Privacy in Communication Networking
- Networking in Grids
- Peer-to-Peer Networking
- Transmission Systems
- Coding, Equalization, and Modulation for Transmission
- Multimedia Services
- Coding, Equalization, Detection, and Timing Recovery for Digital Data Storage Channels
- Network Management

- Residential Networks and Services
- Traffic Engineering
- Network Signaling
- Performance Modeling, Simulations, Test-Beds and Experimentations
